SUSAN LENART

After art school artist Susan Lenart began exploring and collecting hand made traditional adornment and jewelry. She found history and culture so fascinating that it has influenced her own style. She now embeds her personal symbolism into her jewelry and build magnificent visual adornment and layers of moveable jewelry chiming with each drum beat. This is her interpretation of life, these are her powerful talismans and this work is of her tribe.

JEWELS OF THE NOMAD COMPASS

Hand built with sterling silver with a stone of ancient fossil animal bone and fabricated into a powerful amulet, this object is created to magnify the animals power of strength and abundance and is part of Susan's series to honor this animal. Elegance of precious gems and symbols create a powerful piece of adornment, originally used as currency in Borneo and meant as a powerful talisman to bring in abundance. Compass cross symbology.
